

Creating Competitive Opportunities

Move Well.

Brief Summary for School Leaders based on the case study with South Leicestershire
School Sports Partnership and Inspiring
Primaries Academy Trust.

The approach

South Leicestershire School Sports Partnership (SLSSP) and Inspiring Primaries Academy Trust (IPAT) have built a long-term partnership to create a consistent, inclusive offer across nine primary schools. Termly meetings, shared planning and annual CPD help PE leads coordinate opportunities and learn from one another.

What they have done

The competition calendar is organised through three strands - Inspire, Develop and Excel - so pupils can take part at a level that reflects their needs, confidence and experience. Schools map competitions against the PE curriculum, broaden enrichment through activities such as kin-ball and athlete visits, and target groups including less-active girls and pupils with SEND. Staff are also encouraged to join activity challenges and events, strengthening the whole-school culture.

Impact on students

Pupils have more equitable access to enjoyable competition, leadership and physical activity. Engagement has been sustained or improved year on year; in one Movement March, 831 pupils recorded more than one million active minutes.

Impact on staff

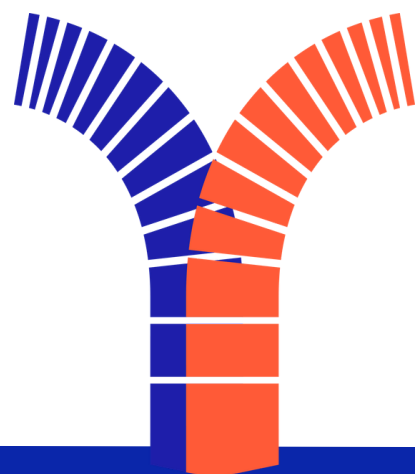

Regular networking, shared resources and CPD have increased staff confidence and reduced the burden on individual schools. Staff participation has also supported wellbeing and helped adults model active lifestyles.

Wider impact

The partnership has strengthened links across the trust and local school-sport network. Schools have achieved strong School Games Mark outcomes, aspects of the work have been recognised in Ofsted reports, and trust-led fundraising has helped sustain local opportunities.

Reflective question

How well does your competition offer provide a meaningful entry point for every pupil - not only those already confident in sport?
